PENROSE PRODIGALITY.

From the Harrisburg Patriot.

Pennsylvania is without cash to pay its bills. Its creditors must wait for an indefinite time for it has no intention of converting its assets into currency to pay even pressing obligations.

This stringency is the product of Penroseism, of extravagance in the fact of solemn warnings in the midst of its prodigality.

In defense of its present plight, it offers no excuse. It has none. It has nearly a million and a half dollars in bills to pay and nothing with which to pay them. This humiliation, too, occurs at a time when the country is waxing fat on prosperity.

Yet this is the political organization which will go before the people clamoring for their votes with the cry "anything to beat Wilson." Pennsylvania owes it to hurl back the clamor with "everything to beat Penrose."

GOVERNOR'S PARTY TO BE HERE TUESDAY OF ENCAMPMENT & FAIR.

Itinerary of Agricultural Tour Calls for Noonday Stop in Centre Hall, Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Thirty-eight of Pennsylvania's rich farming counties with their diversified agricultural pursuits will be visited during the Agricultural Tours to Inspect Farms and Highways of Pennsylvania which will be led by Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, and Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton during the second, third and fourth weeks of September.

Last year the Governor led the Good Roads automobile tour through Pennsylvania's beautiful and historic valleys, but this year in conjunction with Secretary of Agriculture Patton, three tours have been arranged that will lead through the richest grain, dairying, truck and fruit sections of the State and the methods of the thrifty Pennsylvania farmer will be observed.

Many people have traveled through the farming country in their own immediate locality, but this agricultural tour is to give the business man and woman as well as the progressive farmer who can make the trip, an opportunity to witness the agricultural development in many parts of the State.

The first tour starting on Tuesday, September 12th from Harrisburg and returning on Thursday evening will lead through the Juniata Valley, Mifflin, Centre, Clearfield, Jefferson and Elk counties to McKean, Potter and Tioga counties, noted for dairying interest, and thence to Harrisburg through Lycoming, Northumberland, Snyder, Juniata, Perry and Dauphin counties.

The second tour starting from Harrisburg Tuesday, September 19th and returning Thursday evening will lead through Lebanon, Berks, Montgomery, Bucks, Lehigh, Northampton, Monroe, Lackawanna, Wyoming, Luzerne, Columbia, Montour and Northumberland counties back to Harrisburg.

The last tour which leads through a great portion of the southern fruit belt will start from Harrisburg on Tuesday, September 26th and return Thursday evening. The route will cover Lancaster, York, Adams, Franklin, Fulton, Bedford, Somerset, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata and Perry counties and the apple season should be at its heights at this time.

Governor Brumbaugh and Secretary of Agriculture Patton will invite a number of friends to participate in the automobile tour to see the wonders of Pennsylvania farms which annually produce $400 000,000 worth of grain, fruits, cattle, tobacco and other products, making the farmers head of the largest industry in the State. The tour is also open to the general public, and many private parties are expected to avail themselves of the opportunity for three splendid scenic trips which will also bring them in touch with the farm conditions of the State.

On each tour there will be noonday stops for lunch at some park or grove in a purely agricultural district and all the farmers in the locality will be invited to be present for a short greeting. Governor Brumbaugh and other members of the party will make short addresses.

NOONDAY STOP AT CENTRE HALL.

On the first tour the noonday stop will be made at Centre Hall on September 12th; Smethport on September 13th; and near Muncy on September 14th. The night stop on this trip will be at Clearfield on September 13th.

An itinerary of the tours with a map showing the routes is being prepared and can be had by those interested upon application to the Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg.

OFFICIALS IN CENTRE HALL TO ARRANGE FOR GOVERNOR'S PARTY

Confer With Hon. L. Rhone Who Will Designate Tuesday of Encampment Week as "Governor's Day."

W. R. Douglas, of the Department of Agriculture, and W. R. D. Hall, Statistician of the State Highway Department, were in Centre Hall Tuesday noon making the preliminary survey for the first agricultural tour which starts at Harrisburg on Tuesday, September 12th, and goes through the central and northern parts of the State with a noonday meeting at Centre Hall. The governor's party will include one hundred members and will pass through Centre Hall on September 12, about 12:30 o'clock. Farmers throughout this district are asked to gather at this point where Governor Brumbaugh will greet them and make a short address, stopping for two hours at the Grange Encampment where the party will take lunch.

During their brief stop in town Tuesday noon the officials in charge of the arrangements met Hon. L. Rhone and Dr. H. F. Bitner. Mr. Rhone promised to make the Governor's visit the principal feature on the program for Tuesday of Encampment week and accordingly will designate Tuesday "Governor's Day."

Prof. Godshall Elected at Spring Mills.

At a recent meeting of the Gregg township school board, Prof. W. Vernon Godshall was elected principal of the Spring Mills High school for a term of one year. The salary is $100.00 per month. Prof. and Mrs. Godshall, who are former residents of this place, have spent the past few years in Moundsville, West Virginia, where Prof. Godshall has been engaged in High school work.

The family is now visiting relatives near Millheim.

Exhibits Wanted.

The Grange Fair Association is sending forth its appeal to the people of Centre county to bring exhibits for the coming forty-third annual Encampment and Fair which opens Saturday, September 9th. Practically every rural home in the county has been requested through a mailing card to bring products of farm, garden, orchard and vineyard, in the natural state and otherwise.

It is the aim of the management to have the exhibits this year excel those of any former year and to accomplish this end it is only necessary for those interested in the success of the great Grange Fair to do their share in the way of bringing meritorius articles to the big exhibition building on the park. The "old relics" department will again be a feature and those having antiques and heirlooms that are highly prized are urged to bring them to light for a week and place them on exhibit.

For each meritorius article put on exhibition a premium will be paid. Many families in former years have earned a tidy sum in this way.

Twenty-cent gasoline in practically every section of the country within the next week is an assertion made by the Standard Oil Company. It is denied by the big oil company that the government's investigation into the price of gasoline has anything to do with the drop. The price has been falling steadily the past few days in the west and middle west. The decline, according to the officials is due to the fact that crude oil wells, drilled last year, are now showing an excellent yield. Crude oil regulates the price of gasoline.

J. W. Rachau, near Murray school house in upper Brush Valley, is flitting about in a new Ford car.

Septemb r Ninth! Saturday.

Save the date!

Last June it rained so long and so hard that Field Day at State College had to be postponed. Centre County's First Field Day and Play Festival will therefore be held on Saturday, September 9th, at Centre Hall. All the girls and boys, men and women in the county want to be there and join in the sports.

There will be group and competitive games in the morning, a picnic lunch at noon (bring your own,) followed by a short program. In the afternoon the athletic events will take place—both regular and "freak." Opportunity will be given for girls to try to pass the National Athletic Badge Test for girls. Come and join in a day of wholesome sports out-of-doors.

Sounds Potato Blight Warning.

The cool weather of the last few days has led Prof. C. R. Orton of the botany department of The Pennsylvania State College to warn potato growers that if a period of rainy weather should follow the present cool spell a repetition of last year's epidemic of late blight would likely follow. In view of this possibility growers who are prepared are advised to spray their potatoes with Bordeaux mixture (4-4-50) immediately, as an insurance against the blight. A few dollars expended in this way may mean a considerable saving in the season's crop.

If copper sulphate cannot be obtained to make the Bordeaux mixture some commercial mixture of similar composition may be used to advantage as substitute.

Sunday, September 10th, Rev. W. H. Traub, of State College, will preach the Harvest Home sermon in the auditorium on Grange Park. There will be special music.

Recruiting Stations at State College and Bellefonte.

With Troop L at the border and the new Machine Gun Troop from Boalsburg on the way, an outsider might think that all the patriotic young men of Centre county had enlisted into the service. But to one who knows Centre county intimately there is no such thing as a full quota while there is a vacancy in the ranks of any organization from this region.

In order to provide for the vacancies now existing in Troop L, as well as in all the other organizations now in the United States service, Lieutenant R. A. Zentmyer, recruiting officer for this district, will open temporary stations for recruting at Bellefonte and State College, the office at the former place being at the Brockerhoff House, at the latter The Nittany Inn, and will be found at these places during the afternoon and evening of the following days:

Bellefonte, August 28, September 7 and 15.

State College, August 29, September 8 and 15.

Lieutenant Zentmyer will be glad to meet any young man who feels the call to duty, and to talk over with him just what is offered and expected.

It is suggested to the energetic and patriotic young men that this is their chance to prove their patriotism and their courage. Their fathers in '61 did not wait for a draft or even for a second call, but rushed to answer the call of their country at the first opportunity.

This is an opportunity to get into service in any branch of the same, and to secure a thorough training in preparedness.

The third Sunday excursion to Atlantic City will be run by the Pennsy over the local branch, the train leaving Saturday night at 10:29 o'clock.

Auto Goes Down Over Mountainside.

An Oakland "Six" was jammed through the railing, near the top of Nittany Mountain, and landed against a large tree through an error of the operator when it was desired to change from high to low gear. The accident occurred Thursday evening of last week and ended most fortunately, no one being injured in the least, and the car when hauled to the pike with rope and tackle was able to proceed without repair, the damage being but slight. The party in the car were Philadelphians—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, 420 Church Lane, and two children, who were enjoying the hospitality of the couple. The party were on a pleasure tour and among other points in view were Penns Cave and State College. Mr. Scott has been connected with the Tenth National Bank, Philadelphia, for thirty years, and is now its president. The accident was due the fact that the reverse lever was pressed instead of the low speed lever. The car, of course, shot back and finally crushed through the guard rails along the bank, straddled a small sapling and landed squarely against a tree. The front wheels of the car were about eight feet from the edge of the bank, the Oakland having the appearance of rearing as viewed from the road bed.

A Surprise Party.

A very pleasant surprise was tendered Mrs. Maria Wagner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bitner, at Tusseyville, on the evening of August the eighteenth, it being the occasion of Mrs. Wagner's seventy-seventh birthday anniversary.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Wagner was induced to accompany Prof. and Mrs. W. O. Heckman to their home in Centre Hall where she remained until Friday evening, thus giving ample opportunity to have everything in readiness for her return Friday evening.

A lunch was served on the lawn.

Mrs. Wagner was the recipient of a number of gifts. At an early hour all returned to their homes wishing Mrs. Wagner many more happy birthdays.

The following persons were present: Mrs. M. F. Rossman, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitner, Rev. William Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kerlin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flink, Mr. and Mrs. Geiss Wagner, Clayton Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wert, Mrs. Charles Geary and children Lois, Alger and Philip, Prof. and Mrs. W. O. Heckman and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Slack, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rockey, Mr. and Mrs. James Spangler, Mrs. John Spangler and daughter, Mrs. Elmer Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dashem and son, Misses Ruth Rockey, Rebecca Cox, Freda McKinney, Esther Bitner, Elizabeth Bitner, Messrs. William Kerlin, William Rockey, Cyrus Wagner, Harold Wagner, Elmer Dashem, Franklin Heckman, Rufus Ripka and Samuel Bitner.

Baby Girl is Scalded.

Tipping a tub partly filled with scalding water from a bench Martha Swyers, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard Swyers of Lewistown, was frightfully scalded last Thursday. The mother was preparing to do the family washing and the child was toddling about doing in its small way what it could to help. Reaching up little Martha grasped the edge of the tub and pulled it down upon her, a considerable portion of the almost boiling water striking her upon the face and head and running down her chest and about her body. Her recovery is expected.

Pomona Grange to Meet at Milesburg.

A quarterly meeting of the Centre County Pomona Grange will be held in the hall of Ball Eagle Grange, No. 151, at Milesburg, Thursday, August 31st, at 10 a. m. There will be two sessions, the afternoon session opening at 1.30 o'clock.

Questions to be discussed will be of a character of particular interest at this time, and two of them are—

"The Rural Credit Law,"

"Exhibits at the Grange Encampment and Fair."

Williams Grove Picnic.

The biggest agricultural implement show on earth will be held as usual at Williams' Grove, August 28 to September 2.

In addition to the usual implement show there will be an extra large display of stock, poultry, dogs and ponies. Horticultural hall will be filled with fruits, grain and garden products. A tent 80x120 will be filled with automobiles.

The auditorium will be particularly attractive as all the political parties will send able speakers of national fame. State Highway Department will exhibit.

The evening entertainments will be high grade as ever. Everything first-class, clean and attractive. Low rates on all railroads. Consult your station agent.

Farmers in New Jersey have opened a roadside market where peaches, potatoes, watermelons, etc., are disposed of to passing tourists. The plan is working out very satisfactorily.

Domer S. Ishler took the following in his car to Sugar Valley campmeeting last Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Jordan and children, of Tusseyville, and B. H. Emerick, of Centre Hall.

The highest automobile license number observed hereabouts is 212,206. When the 200,000 mark was reached, a few weeks ago, much ado was made, and now it looks as though the first figure in the numerals might be a three. The automobile license numbers do not include licenses for trucks, motor cycles, etc.

Robert Goodhart, of Altoona, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. Mary Goodhart, for a few days last week and on Sunday returned home, making the trip with his brother, F. V. Goodhart, in the latter's car. Accompanying Mr. Goodhart home, on Monday, was his niece, Miss Isabel Goodhart.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Emory Hoy and daughter Miss Elizabeth, on Saturday evening arrived in Centre Hall on the return of a 1000-mile automobile trip through Pennsylvania and New York. They will be guests of Mrs. Hoy's mother, Mrs. W. B. Mingle, until Saturday when they will return to their home in Philadelphia.

The exciting experience of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, on Nittany mountain, a brief account of which appears in another column of this issue, resulted in a pleasant visit at the home of Prof. and Mrs. L. O. Packer, in Centre Hall. The accident referred to obliged the Philadelphians to remain in Centre Hall for the night and learning that the Packer family lived here a portion of the evening was spent with them.

Dr. L. E. Wolfe, of Quincy, Franklin county, was in town last week, having come here to make arrangements to locate in Centre Hall to practice his profession. Since leaving here, he notified Prof. L. O. Packer that he would lease his home as soon as it could be vacated. Prof. Packer intends moving to the Pittsburgh district, where he is engaged in school work, but to date he has not been able to procure a house.

Two auto loads of York county people got their first glimpse of beautiful Penns Valley, last Wednesday, when they motored here for a brief stay with Mr. and Mrs. Rossman, of near Tusseyville. The visitors are friends of the Rossmans, whose acquaintance was formed years ago following the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Rossman and a short residence in York county. The following comprised the party: Mr. and Mrs. Zach Lauer, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin M. Spangler, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Zinn.

From reports received by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from all sections of the State the hay crop just harvested is one of the largest ever known in the State and may reach a total of more than 5,300,000 tons. Last year the production was estimated at 3,558,000 tons or an average yield of about 1.18 tons to an acre. During the past harvest there has been an increase in acreage harvested of almost ten per cent. and the average yield will be increased to a point higher than it has been in the past ten years. The 10 year average is 1.33 tons an acre and the highest average was in 1908 with 1½ tons to an acre. In some counties the present average is close to two tons to an acre and it is expected that final figures for the entire State will make the average per acre close to 1.7 tons.

Save Pennies—Waste Dollars

¶ Some users of printing save pennies by getting inferior work and lose dollars through lack of advertising value in the work they get. Printers as a rule charge very reasonable prices, for none of them get rich although nearly all of them work hard.

Moral: Give your printing to a good printer and save money.

Got Something You Want to Sell?

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that somebody by putting a want advertisement in THIS NEWSPAPER?

Christley, of the Pittsburgh Workmen's Compensation Board. He said Mrs. Link would receive forty per cent. of her husband's salary for 500 weeks, and for every child under sixteen years of age an additional five per cent. would be paid. "The fact that he was in the employ of the museum and doing his work would entitle him to the benefits of the Act," the referee said.

Although the Connellsville coke trade passed the 400,000-ton shipment mark during the week, the shipment of 200,000 tons of coal to new by-product coke ovens in other parts of the country indicated that the trend of the industry was changing. Of this amount, 80,000 tons weekly to Youngstown alone will displace former coke shipments of 64,000 tons, withdrawing that amount of coke from the market. Connellsville operators are quoting coal at $1.49 and $1.50 a ton at the mine, which they contend is equal to $2.65 and $2.70 a ton for coke. Car supply for coke was abundant, but there was a shortage in coal cars.

Dr. Surface Quits After 14 Years.

State Economic Zoologist H. A. Surface left his office at the Capitol, retiring from the chair he fought so hard to retain with the declaration that he now feels satisfied that his dismissal is legal.

He declared Secretary of Agriculture Patton had finally convinced him that the action of the Agricultural Commission in dismissing him was sanctioned by the Governor.

"That was all I wanted," he smiled, "the assurance that my dismissal was legal."

Prof. J. E. Sanders, of Wisconsin, will succeed Prof. Surface about September 10, in time to accompany the Governor on his agricultural tour of the State. P. T. Barns, of this city, assistant zoologist, will meanwhile be in charge of the office.

Secretary Patton refused to discuss rumors that orchard inspectors appointed by Surface will be replaced by Vare-Brumbaugh men.

Record Hay Crop For 1916.

The production last year averaged 1.18 tons to the acre and 3,558,000 tons were harvested. This year, the acreage was increased greatly and the yield per acre was much larger. The ten-year average is 1.33 tons to the acre. In some counties, the present average is nearly two tons and it is expected that final figures will make an average per acre close to 1.7 tons.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertrees, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn: Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife.

Bibbs Sheridan, the physical weakling, the "queer one," and Mary Vertrees, the aristocrat, the husband-hunter, get acquainted while hearing organ music. They exchange spiritual messages on the wings of melody. Do you think this acquaintance will awaken in their breasts a mutual recognition of love's first symptoms?

"No," he returned, gravely. "I'm not thinking at all; I'm only making vocal sounds. I seem to be the subject of what little meaning they possess, and I'd like to change it, but I don't know how to manage it."

"You needn't change the subject on my account, Mr. Sheridan," she said. "Not even if you really talked about yourself." She turned her face toward him as she spoke, and Bibbs caught his breath; he was pathetically amazed by the look she gave him. It was a glowing look, warmly friendly and understanding, and, what almost shocked him, it was an eagerly interested look. Bibbs was not accustomed to anything like that.

"I—you—I—I'm—" he stammered, and the faint color in his cheeks grew almost vivid.

She was still looking at him, and she saw the strange radiance that came into his face. There was something about him, too, that explained how "queer" many people might think him; but he did not seem "queer" to Mary Vertrees; he seemed the most quaintly natural person she had ever met.

He waited, and became coherent. "You say something now," he said. "I don't even belong in the chorus, and here I am, trying to sing the funny man's solo! You—"

"No," she interrupted. "I'd rather play your accompaniment."

"I'll stop and listen to it, then."

"Perhaps—" she began, but after pausing thoughtfully she made a gesture with her muff, indicating a large brick church which they were approaching. "Do you see that church, Mr. Sheridan?"

"I suppose I could," he answered in simple truthfulness, looking at her. "But I don't want to. I have a feeling it's where you're going, and where I'll be sent back."

She shook her head in cheery negation. "Not unless you want to be. Would you like to come with me?"

"Why—why—yes," he said. "Anywhere!" And again it was apparent that he spoke in simple truthfulness.

"Then come—if you care for organ music. The organist is an old friend of mine, and sometimes he plays for me. He's a dear old man. That's he, waiting in the doorway. He looks like Beethoven, doesn't he? I think he knows that, perhaps, and enjoys it a little. I hope so."

"Yes," said Bibbs, as they reached the church steps. "I think Beethoven would like it, too. It must be pleasant to look like other people."

"I haven't kept you?" Mary said to the organist. "This is Mr. Sheridan, Doctor Kraft. He has come to listen with me."

The organist looked bluntly surprised. "Iss that so?" he exclaimed. "He iss musician himself, of course."

"No," said Bibbs, as the three entered the church together. "I—I played the—I tried to play—" Fortunately he checked himself; he had been about to offer the information that he had failed to master the jews' harp in his boyhood. "No, I'm not a musician," he contented himself with saying.

"What?" Doctor Kraft's surprise increased. "Young man, you are fortunate! I play for Miss Vertrees; she comes always alone. You are the first. You are the first one ever!"

They had reached the head of the central aisle, and as the organist finished speaking Bibbs stopped short, turning to look at Mary Vertrees in a dazed way that was not of her perceiving; for, though she stopped as he did, her gaze followed the organist, who was walking away from them toward the front of the church, shaking his white Beethovian mane roguishly.

"It's false pretenses on my part," Bibbs said. "You mean to be kind to the sick, but I'm not an invalid any more. I'm so well I'm going back to work in a few days. I'd better leave before he begins to play, hadn't I?"

"No," said Mary, beginning to walk forward. "Not unless you don't like great music."

He followed her to a seat about halfway up the aisle while Doctor Kraft ascended to the organ. "This afternoon some Handel!" he turned to shout.

Mary nodded. "Will you like that?" she asked Bibbs.

"I don't know. I never heard any except 'Largo.' I don't know anything about music. I don't even know how to pretend I do. If I knew enough to pretend, I would."

"No," said Mary, looking at him and smiling faintly, "you wouldn't."

She turned away as a great sound began to swim and tremble in the air; the huge empty space of the church filled with it, and the two people listening filled with it; the universe seemed to fill and thrill with it. The two sat intensely still, the great sound all round about them, while the church grew dusky, and only the organist's lamp made a tiny star of light. His white head moved from side to side beneath it rhythmically, or lunged and recovered with the fierceness of a duelist thrusting, but he was magnificently the master of his giant, and it sang to his magic as he bade it.

Bibbs was swept away upon that mighty singing. Such a thing was wholly unknown to him; there had been no music in his meager life. Unlike the tale, it was the Princess Bedrulbudour who had brought him to the enchanted cave, and that—for Bibbs—was what made its magic dazing. It seemed to him a long, long time since he had been walking home drearily from Doctor Gurney's office; it seemed to him that he had set out upon a happy journey since then, and that he had reached another planet, where Mary Vertrees and he sat alone together, listening to a vast choiring of invisible soldiers and holy angels. There were armies of voices about them, singing praise and thanksgiving; and yet they were alone. It was incredible that the walls of the church were not the boundaries of the universe, to remain so forever; incredible that there was a smoky street just yonder, where housemaids were bringing in evening papers from front steps and where children were taking their last spins on roller skates before being haled indoors for dinner.

He had a curious sense of communication with his new friend. He knew it could not be so, and yet he felt as if all the time he spoke to her, saying: "You hear this strain? You hear that strain? You know the dream that these sounds bring to me?" And it seemed to him as though she answered continually: "I hear! I hear that strain, and I hear the new one that you are hearing now. I know the dream that these sounds bring to you. Yes, yes, I hear it all! We hear—together!"

And though the church grew so dim that all was mysterious shadow except the vague planes of the windows and the organist's light, with the white head moving beneath it, Bibbs had no consciousness that the girl sitting beside him had grown shadowy; he seemed to see her as plainly as ever in the darkness, though he did not look at her. And all the mighty chanting of the organ's multitudinous voices that afternoon seemed to Bibbs to be chorusing of her and interpreting her, singing her thoughts and singing for him the world of humble gratitude that was in his heart because she was so kind to him. It all meant Mary.

But when she asked him what it meant, on their homeward way, he was silent. They had come a few paces from the church without speaking, walking slowly.

"I'll tell you what it meant to me," she said, as he did not immediately reply. "Almost any music of Handel's always means one thing above all others to me: Courage! That's it. It makes cowardice or whining seem so infinitesimal—it makes most things in our hustling little lives seem infinitesimal."

"Yes," he said. "It seems odd, doesn't it, that people downtown are hurrying to trains and hanging to straps in trolley cars, weltering every way to get home and feed and sleep so they can get downtown tomorrow. And yet there isn't anything down there worth getting to. They're like servants drudging to keep the house going, and believing the drudgery itself is the great thing. They make so much noise and fuss and dirt they forget that the house was meant to live in. The housework has to be done, but the people who do it have been so overpaid that they're confused and worship the housework. They're overpaid, and yet, poor things! they haven't anything that a chicken can't have. Of course, when the world gets to paying its wages sensibly that will be different."

"Do you mean 'communism'?" she asked, and she made their slow pace a little slower—they had only three blocks to go.

"Whatever the word is, I only mean that things don't look very sensible now—especially to a man that wants to keep out of 'em and can't! 'Communism?' Well, at least any 'decent sport' would say it's fair for all the strong runners to start from the same mark and give the weak ones a fair distance ahead, so that all can run something like even on the stretch. And wouldn't it be pleasant, really, if they could all cross the winning line together? Who really enjoys beating anybody—if he sees the beaten man's face? The only way we can enjoy getting ahead of other people nowadays is by forgetting what the other people feel. And that," he added, "is nothing of what the music meant to me. You see, if I keep talking about what it didn't mean I can keep from telling you what it did mean."

"Didn't it mean courage to you, too—a little?" she asked. "Triumph and praise were in it, and somehow those things mean courage to me."

"Yes, they were all there," Bibbs said. "I don't know the name of what he played, but I shouldn't think it would matter much. The man that makes the music must leave it to you and what it can mean to you, and the name he puts to it can't make much difference—except to himself and people very much like him, I suppose."

"I suppose that's true, though I'd never thought of it like that."

"I imagine music must make feelings and paint pictures in the minds of the people who hear it," Bibbs went on, musingly, "according to their own natures as much as according to the music itself."

The musician might compose something and play it, wanting you to think of the Holy Grail, and some people who heard it would think of a prayer meeting, and some would think of how good they were themselves, and a boy might think of himself at the head of a solemn procession, carrying a banner and riding a white horse. And then, if these were some jubilant passages in the music, he'd think of a circus."

They had reached her gate, and she set her hand upon it, but did not open it. Bibbs felt that this was almost the kindest of her kindnesses—not to be prompt in leaving him.

"After all," she said, "you didn't tell me whether you liked it."

"No. I didn't need to."

"No, that's true, and I didn't need to ask. I knew. But you said you were trying to keep from telling me what it did mean."

"I can't keep from telling it any longer," he said. "The music meant to me—it meant the kindness of—of you."

"Kindness? How?"

"You thought I was a sort of lonely tramp—and sick—"

"No," she said, decidedly. "I thought perhaps you'd like to hear Doctor Kraft play. And you did."

"It's curious; sometimes it seemed to me that it was you who were playing"

Mary laughed. "I? I strum! Piano. A little Chopin—Grieg—Chaminade. You wouldn't listen!"

Bibbs drew a deep breath. "I'm frightened again," he said, in an unsteady voice. "I'm afraid you'll think I'm pushing, but—" He paused, and the words sank to a murmur.

"Oh, if you want me to play for you!" she said. "Yes, gladly. It will be merely absurd after what you heard this afternoon. I play like a hundred thousand other girls, and I like it. I'm glad when anyone's willing to listen, and if you—" She stopped, checked by a sudden recollection, and laughed ruefully. "But my piano won't be here after tonight. I—I'm sending it away tomorrow. I'm afraid that if you'd like me to play to you you'd have to come this evening."

"You'll let me?" he cried.

"Certainly, if you care to."

"If I could play—" he said, wistfully, "if I could play like that old man in the church I could thank you."

"Ah, but you haven't heard me play. I know you liked this afternoon, but—"

"Yes," said Bibbs. "It was the greatest happiness I've ever known."

It was too dark to see his face, but his voice held such plain honesty, and he spoke with such complete unconsciousness of saying anything especially significant, that she knew it was the truth. For a moment she was nonplused, then she opened the gate and went in. "You'll come after dinner, then?"

"Yes," he said, not moving. "Would you mind if I stood here until time to come in?"

She had reached the steps, and at that she turned, offering him the response of laughter and a gay gesture of her muff toward the lighted windows of the new house, as though bidding him to run home to his dinner.

That night, Bibbs sat writing in his notebook:

Music can come into a blank life and fill it. Everything that is beautiful is music, if you can listen.

There is no gracefulness like that of a graceful woman at a grand piano. There is a swimming loveliness of line that seems to merge with the running of the sound, and you seem, as you watch her, to see that you are hearing and to hear what you are seeing.

There are women who make you think of pine woods coming down to a sparkling sea. The air about such a woman is bracing, and when she is near you, you feel strong and ambitious; you forget that the world doesn't like you. You think that perhaps you are a great fellow, after all. Then you come away and feel like a boy who has fallen in love with his Sunday school teacher. You'll be whipped for it—and ought to be.

There are women who make you think of Diana, crowned with the moon. But they do not have the "Greek profile." I do not believe Helen of Troy had a "Greek profile;" they would not have fought about her if her nose had been quite that long. The Greek nose is not the adorable nose. The adorable nose is about an eighth of an inch shorter.

Much of the music of Wagner, it appears, is not suitable to the piano. Wagner was a composer who could interpret into music such things as the primitive impulses of humanity—he could have made a machine shop into music. But not if he had to work in it. Wagner was always dealing in immensities—a machine shop would have put a majestic lump in so grand a gizzard as that.

There is a mystery about pianos, it seems. Sometimes they have to be "sent away." That is how some people speak of the penitentiary. "Sent away" is a euphuism for "sent to prison." But pianos are not sent to prison, and they are not sent to the tuner—the tuner is sent to them. Why are pianos "sent away"—and where?

Sometimes a glorious day shines into the most ordinary and useless life. Happiness and beauty come caroling out of the air into the gloomy house of that life as if some stray angel just happened to perch on the roof-tree, resting and singing. And the night after such a day is lustrous and splendid with the memory of it. Music and beauty and kindness—those are the three greatest things God can give us. To bring them all in one day to one who expected nothing—ah! the heart that received them should be as humble as it is thankful. But it is hard to be humble when one is so rich with new memories. It is impossible to be humble after a day of glory.

Yes—the adorable nose is more than an eighth of an inch shorter than the Greek nose. It is a full quarter of an inch shorter.

There are women who will be kinder to a sick tramp than to a conquering hero. But the sick tramp had better remember that's what he is. Take care, take care! Humble's the word!

CHAPTER XV.

That "mystery about pianos" which troubled Bibbs had been a mystery to Mr. Vertrees, and it was being explained to him at about the time Bibbs scribbled the reference to it in his notes. Mary had gone upstairs upon Bibbs' departure at ten o'clock, and Mr. and Mrs. Vertrees sat until after midnight in the library talking.

"She needn't to have done that about her piano," vapored Mr. Vertrees. "We could have managed somehow without it. At least she ought to have consulted me, and if she insisted I could have arranged the details with the—the dealer."

"She thought that it might be—annoying for you," Mrs. Vertrees explained. "Really, she planned for you not to know about it until they had removed—until after tomorrow, that is, but I decided to—to mention it. You see, she didn't even tell me about it until this morning. She has another idea, too, I'm afraid. It's—it's—"

"Well?" he urged, as she found it difficult to go on.

"Her other idea is—that is, it was—I think it can be avoided, of course—it was about her furs."

"No!" he exclaimed, quickly. "I won't have it! You must see to that. I'd rather not talk to her about it, but you mustn't let her."

"I'll try not," his wife promised. "She seems to be troubled about the—the coal matter and—about Tilly. Of course the piano will take care of some things like those for a while and—"

"I don't like it. I gave her the piano to play on, not to—"

"You mustn't be distressed about it in one way," she said, comfortingly. "She arranged with the—with the purchaser that the men will come for it about half after five in the afternoon. The days are so short now it's really quite winter."

"Oh, yes," he agreed, moodily. "So far as that goes I don't suppose our neighbors are paying much attention just now, though I hear Sheridan was back in his office early the morning after the funeral."

Mrs. Vertrees made a little sound of commiseration. "I don't believe that was because he wasn't suffering, though. Mary told me he seemed wrapped up in his son's succeeding. He isn't vulgar in his boasting, I understand; he doesn't talk a great deal about his—his actual money. No, his bragging usually seemed to be about his family and the greatness of this city."

"She Needn't to Have Done That About the Piano."

"'Greatness of this city'!" Mr. Vertrees echoed, with dull bitterness. "It's nothing but a coal hole. Of course Sheridan says it's 'great.'"

Mrs. Vertrees seemed unaware of this outburst. "I believe," she began, timidly, "he doesn't boast of—that is, I understand he has never seemed so interested in the—the other one."

Her husband's face was dark, but at that a heavier shadow fell upon it; he looked more haggard than before. "'The other one,'" he repeated, averting his eyes. "You mean—you mean the third son—the one that was here this evening?"

"Yes, the—the youngest," she returned, her voice so feeble it was almost a whisper.

And then neither of them spoke for several minutes. Nor did either look at the other during that silence.

At last Mr. Vertrees contrived to cough, but not convincingly. "What—ah—what was it Mary said about him this afternoon? I didn't ah—happen to catch it."

"She—she didn't say much. All she said was this: 'He's the most wistful creature I've ever known.'"

"Well?"

"That was all. He is wistful-looking; and so fragile. If I hadn't known about him I'd have thought he had quite an interesting face."

"If you 'hadn't known about him'? Known what?"

"Oh, nothing, of course," she said, hurriedly. "Nothing definite, that is. Mary said decidedly, long ago, that he's not at all insane, as we thought at first. It's only—well, of course it is odd, their attitude about him. I suppose it's some nervous trouble that makes him—perhaps a little queer at times, so that he can't apply himself to anything—or perhaps does odd things. But, after all, of course, we only have an impression about it. We don't know—that is, positively, I—" She paused, then went on: "I didn't know just how to ask—that is—I didn't mention it to Mary. I didn't—I—" The poor lady floundered pitifully, concluding with a mumble. "So soon after—after the—the shock."

"I don't think I've caught more than a glimpse of him," said Mr. Vertrees. "I wouldn't know him if I saw him, but your impression of him is—" He broke off suddenly, springing to his feet in agitation. "I can't imagine her—oh no!" he gasped. And he began to pace the floor. "A half-witted epileptic!"

"No, no!" she cried. "He may be all right. We—"

"Oh, it's horrible! I can't—" He threw himself back into his chair again, sweeping his hands across his face, then letting them fall limply at his sides.

Mrs. Vertrees was tremulous. "You musn't give way so," she said, inspired for once almost to direct discourse. "Whatever Mary might think of doing, it wouldn't be on her own account; it would be on ours. But if we should—should consider it, that wouldn't be on our own account. It isn't because we think of ourselves."

"Oh God, no!" he groaned. "Not for us! We can go to the poorhouse, but Mary can't be a stenographer!"

Sighing, Mrs. Vertrees resumed her obliqueness. "Of course," she murmured, "it all seems very premature, speculating about such things, but I had a queer sort of feeling that she seemed quite interested in this—" She had almost said "in this one," but checked herself. "In this young man. It's natural, of course; she is always so strong and well, and he is—he seems to be, that is—rather appealing to the—the sympathies."

"Yes!" he agreed, bitterly. "Precisely. The sympathies!"

"Perhaps," she faltered—"perhaps you might feel easier if I could have a little talk with someone?"

"With whom?"

"I had thought of—not going about it too brusquely, of course, but perhaps just waiting for his name to be mentioned, if I happened to be talking with somebody that knew the family—and then I might find a chance to say that I was sorry to hear he'd been ill so much, and— Something of that kind perhaps?"

"You don't know anybody that knows the family."

"Yes. That is—well, in a way, of course, one of the family. That Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan is not a—that is, she's rather a pleasant-faced little woman, I think, and of course rather ordinary. I think she is interested about—that is, of course, she'd be anxious to be more intimate with Mary, naturally. She's always looking over here from her house; she was looking out of the window this afternoon when Mary went out, I noticed—though I don't think Mary saw her. I'm sure she wouldn't think it out of place to—to be frank about matters. She called the other day, and Mary must rather like her—she said that evening that the call had done her good. Don't you think it might be wise?"

"Wise? I don't know. I feel that the whole matter is impossible."

"Yes, so do I," she returned, promptly. "It isn't really a thing we should be considering seriously, of course. Still—"

"I should say not! But possibly—"

Thus they skirmished up and down the field, but before they turned the lights out and went upstairs it was thoroughly understood between them that Mrs. Vertrees should seek the earliest opportunity to obtain definite information from Sibyl Sheridan concerning the mental and physical status of Bibbs. And if he were subject to attacks of lunacy, the unhappy pair decided to prevent the sacrifice they supposed their daughter intended to make of herself. Altogether, if there were spiteful ghosts in the old house that night, eavesdropping upon the woeful comedy, they must have died anew of laughter!

CHAPTER XVI.

Mrs. Vertrees' opportunity occurred the very next afternoon. Darkness had fallen, the piano movers had come. They had carried the piano down the front steps, and Mrs. Vertrees was standing in the open doorway behind them, preparing to withdraw, when she heard a sharp exclamation; and Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan, bareheaded, emerged from the shadow into the light of the doorway.

"Good gracious!" she cried. "It did give me a fright!"

"It's Mrs. Sheridan, isn't it?" Mrs. Vertrees was perplexed by this informal appearance, but she reflected that it might be proverbial. "Won't you come in?"

"No. Oh no, thank you!" Sibyl panted, pressing her hand to her side. "You don't know what a fright you've given me! And it was nothing but your piano!" She laughed shrilly. "I just glanced out of the window, a minute or so ago, and saw your door wide open and black figures of men against the light, carrying something heavy. And I thought I'd seen your daughter start for a drive with Bibbs Sheridan in a car about three o'clock—and—They aren't back yet, are they?"

"No. Good heavens!"

"And the only thing I could think of was that something must have happened to them, and I just dashed over—and it was only your piano!" She broke into laughter again. "I suppose you're just sending it somewhere to be repaired, aren't you?"

"It's—it's being taken downtown," said Mrs. Vertrees. "Won't you come in? Id really—"

"Thank you, but I must be running back. My husband usually gets home about this time, and I make a little point of it always to be there."

"That's very sweet." Mrs. Vertrees descended the steps and walked toward the street with Sibyl.

"I'm afraid Miss Vertrees will miss her piano," said Sibyl, watching the instrument disappear into the big van at the curb. "She plays wonderfully, Mrs. Kittersby tells me."

"Yes, she plays very well. Mr. Sheridan came last evening to hear her play because she had arranged with the—that is, it was to be removed this afternoon. He seems almost well again."

"Yes." Sibyl nodded. "His father's going to try to start him to work."

"He seems very delicate," said Mrs. Vertrees. "I shouldn't think he would be able to stand a great deal, either physically or—" She paused and then added, glowing with the sense of her own adroitness—"or mentally."

"Oh, mentally Bibbs is all right," said Sibyl, in an odd voice.

"But has he always been?" The question came with anxious eagerness.

"Certainly. He had a long siege of nervous dyspepsia, but he's over it."

"And you think—"

"Bibbs is all right. You needn't wor—" Sibyl choked, and pressed her handkerchief to her mouth. "Good night, Mrs. Vertrees," she said, hurriedly.

Will Sybil help along the match between Bibbs and Mary in order to link up the Sheridan family with the aristocrats? Or will she set about to poison Old Man Sheridan's mind against the girl?

It is perfectly proper to enforce the speed limit in Centre Hall borough, provided the officers act in an impartial manner and do not design to trap tourists. There is little doubt but that in some boroughs the speed limit ordinances are made the source of revenue for officials who have little or no thought other than to enrich themselves. Speeding over our main street has been indulged in to excess, but it was and is being practiced to a large extent by our own citizens, and among these councilmen have been the chief offenders.

Boal Gun Troop Leaves for Mt. Gretna.

Fully two thousand people gathered at Boalsburg on Monday evening to witness the exercises which did honor to the members of the Boal Mounted Machine Gun Troop, who on Saturday were mustered into the federal service, and on Tuesday entrained for Mt. Gretna where they will receive their arms and be sent to the Mexican border.

Three hundred automobiles from all parts of the county carried fully 1500 people to the Boal estate where a farewell address was made by Prof. John Hamilton. Burges John Holmes, on behalf of the citizens of State College, presented the troop with a silken flag. The Boalsburg and Pine Grove Mills bands furnished music.

Upon arrival the commanding officer will report to the United States mustering officer for instructions as to physical examination, etc.; the uniforms and equipment will be issued at camp.

Spring Mills, 12; Milesburg, 11.

The Spring Mills baseball team took a hard fought game from Milesburg on Saturday afternoon on the latter's grounds, the score being 12 to 11. As in the former game played by these two clubs Spring Mills came out a winner by one-run lead. The two clubs alternated in taking the lead. Spring Mills opened the game by tallying four runs in short order through effective hitting. Milesburg came back in the next inning and tied the score when Jordan "lost" the ball in the corn field lying in close proximity to the left fielder's territory. The bases were all occupied at the time. Four runs scored on the hit.

The game was won in the ninth, Spring Mills overcoming a 11 to 9 handicap and scoring the three needed runs thru manifesting a do-or-die spirit. Milesburg failed to do anyin their last half.

Surplus from Postal Service.

A surplus of $5,200,000 from the postal service during the fiscal year ending June 30 was reported to President Wilson last week by the Postmaster General Burleson. The postmaster general announced that he had sent a check for that amount to the treasury.

In a letter to Mr. Burleson acknowledging receipt of the check, Secretary McAdoo declared this is the third time since 1836 that surplus postal revenues have been deposited in the treasury, and that all three years have been under the present administration.

Dr. W. E. Fischer will fill the appointments for Rev. D. S. Kurtz at Centre Hall and Tusseyville Sunday next. The hours will be 10 o'clock a. m. at the former place and 2:00 o'clock p. m., at the latter. It is twenty three years since Dr. Fischer vacated the local charge, but his former parishioners are always anxious to hear him expound the scripture, and it was at their solicitation that he consented to preach at the times mentioned.

Ten dollars fine each and the costs was imposed on two Centre Hall young men and one from Sunbury who on Saturday night "for fun" appropriated James I. Fetterolf's car while standing in front of the National hotel in Millheim and for three hours were on a lark. From the garage man's point of view the trick wasn't so laughable and as a result of having the young fellows brought before 'squire Brungart on Monday night, Fetterolf collected thirty dollars damage. The young man from Sunbury was not at the hearing but his father guaranteed the payment of the fine.

Mrs. T. W. Simkins will leave this (Thursday) morning for Bloomsburg where she will spend several weeks with Mrs. James R. Schuyler and about September 1st will leave for Philadelphia to make her future home. Mrs. Simkins, during her few years residence in Centre Hall, took an active interest in community welfare work, and served as president of the local W. C. T. U. organization. Her interest in young people was always manifest and the life of more than one young person has been properly guided through her wholesome influence. The best wishes of the community will go with her.

Rev. D. J. Mitterling, after a short visit with his brother, J. W. Mitterling, in this place, departed for his home in Madison, South Dakota, on Monday. Rev. Mitterling, while not having charge of a regular pastorate any longer, still acts in the capacity of a supply minister in the Presbyterian church. Since leaving the ministry Rev. Mitterling has been engaged in the piano business in South Dakota. That he is doing a fine business may be determined when it is said that during his short absence from home his good wife secured twenty prospective piano purchasers. Consequently all that remains for the proprietor to do is to produce the necessary sales talk and land the orders. Rev. Mitterling is the same genial and warm-hearted individual as of yore and never fails to receive the glad hand when making a visit to his native home.

$635 Roadster $620 F. O. B. TOLEDO

This Overland is the world's most powerful low-priced car.

It has a 31½ horsepower en bloc motor that is a perfect marvel for speed, power and endurance.

By increasing the bore of the motor from 3⅛ to 3⅜" we are able to offer a power plant which at 1950 R. P. M. develops full 31½ horsepower.

Tests under every condition in all parts of the country demonstrate that it easily develops better than fifty miles per hour on the road.

Speed of course varies under different conditions, but in practically every instance it has been getting fifty miles an hour and with ease.

We have scores of telegrams showing that twenty to twenty-five miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual.

The performance of this car is almost beyond belief.

Take any other low-priced car on the market. Pit it against this new Overland. Compare them for sheer speed, for abundance of power, for riding comfort and economy, and you'll find this car will back anything else clean off the boards.

That's a strong statement, but a fact nevertheless.

Try it yourself and see.

Here are more important facts.

It has four-inch tires which are more than generous for a car of this size.

Not only has it a large and roomy body, but it has an attractive, up-to-date streamline body.

It has the latest and most improved system of ignition.

It has the cantilever springs—the easiest riding springs in the world.

What's more, it's complete. Not a thing to buy. You get the finest Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting system, magnetic speedometer, one-man top, demountable rims and practically every accessory found on the highest priced cars.

It only goes to prove how big production can cut cost and save you money.

WILSON VETOES THE ARMY BILL

Resents Section Freeing Tongues of Retired Officers.

HAY TAKES BULL BY HORNS

President's Action Against Feature Exempting Retired Officers From Courts-Martial Brings Declaration From Hay.

Washington.—The Army appropriation bill was unexpectedly vetoed by President Wilson because he would not accept certain provisions in the revision of the articles of war, forced into the bill by the House conferees and commonly said in Army circles to be in the interest of certain retired officers "at outs" with the Army.

Chairman Hay, of the House Military Committee, at once reintroduced the bill with the entire section revising the articles of war stricken out and the declaration that no revision at all would go through with the bill in this Congress.

Chairman Chamberlain, of the Senate Military Committee, announced that the Senate would reinsert the revision approved by the President and the War Department, but stricken out in the House, and that the situation had resolved itself into a contest between the Senate and House on one hand and Mr. Hay on the other.

May Delay Adjournment.

The tangle threatens to delay the adjournment of Congress and, incidentally, completion of the preparedness program, as well as to hold up appropriations for the Army increases and all the extra expenses involved in the Mexican service.

The President's veto, one of the few he has exercised, marks another stage in the long fight between the Army and Chairman Hay. The Army charges Hay, with defeat of the Continental Army and universal training plans and the substitution of National Guard reorganization, which it opposed. Army officers also say certain features of the bill were injected in conference and never were debated on the floor of either house of Congress.

The articles of war have not been revised in a hundred years, and are said to be sadly deficient for dealing with conditions which the growth of the Army and development of the nation requires. The War Department is especially anxious for changes to enable Army officers to deal adequately with problems arising during the present Mexican service.

Included in the revision worked out by Congress, over the objection of the President and the War Department, was a provision which exempted retired officers from courts martial and Army discipline, if not actually from Army control, and placed them under the jurisdiction of the civil courts.

LIGHTNING KILLS SOLDIER.

Montana Guardsman Meets Death At Fort Bliss.

El Paso, Tex.—One soldier was killed and thousands of others encamped in and near El Paso suffered great discomfort as a result of heavy rains.

During the all-night storm Private Charles Johnston, headquarters company, Seventh United States Infantry, of Chouteau, Mont., was killed by lightning in his tent at Fort Bliss. Other soldiers nearby were stunned.

Water ran through the camps of the Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Michigan National Guard nearby, inundating some tents and ran three feet deep in the company streets of the Thirty-first Michigan Infantry.

MEXICANS HOLD AMERICANS.

United States Agent Seeks Release Of Imprisoned Ranchmen.

Washington.—Special Agent Rodgers reported that two Americans, brothers, named Hamilton, who own ranches in the State of Oaxaca, have been imprisoned in Mexico City and that he is seeking their release. One is accused of having killed a Mexican in 1912. The charge against the other is not known here. According to Mr. Rodgers' information, the Mexican referred to in the charge was a bandit and was slain by Mexican federal troops in an engagement near Hamilton's ranch. Another member of the band now has charged Hamilton with the killing.

1,500 ARMY POSTS VACANT.

That Number Of Second Lieutenants Needed For Regulars.

Washington.—There are now 1,500 vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant of the regular army to be filled, and that many opportunities, of course, for young men to enter upon a professional army career. The office of the Adjutant-General announced that 900 applicants had been received for these vacancies and the applicants had been directed to take the examination. No more applicants will be designated for this examination, but it is announced that a further examination will be held early in 1917 for the overflow.

URGE BOND ISSUE TO MEET EXPENSES

Big Sum Needed to Meet Mexican Expenditures.

MAY NEED MORE MONEY

Department Concurs In Recommendation That Bonds Be Issued—Amount Proposed Will Only Meet Requirement Until December 31.

Washington.—A bond issue of $130,000,000 to meet extraordinary government expenditures due to the Mexican situation was unexpectedly recommended to Congress by majority members of the Finance Committee, with the concurrence of the Treasury Department.

The bond issue is urged in the report of the Finance Committee, filed in the Senate on the $205,000,000 Revenue Bill. In addition to the proposed issue and the Revenue Bill the Finance Committee asserts that further appropriation of $86,000,000 will be necessary to defray the expense of operations in the Mexican emergency if conditions on the border continue as they are now after December 31, 1916. The $130,000,000 to be provided by the proposed bond issue, the report says, will meet Mexican expenditures only until the end of this calendar year.

Accompanying the Finance Committee majority's report, submitted by Senator Simmons, was a general statement from the Treasury Department, estimating disbursements for the fiscal year 1917 at $1,126,243,000 and receipts $762,000,000.

"The total appropriations for the fiscal year 1917, exclusive of those carried in the so-called shipping bill, which is to be defrayed by the issuance of Panama bonds, will exceed the appropriations for the fiscal year 1916 by about $469,000,000," says the report. "This increase is represented principally by $167,000,000 additional amount appropriated for the Navy, $166,000,000 additional amount appropriated for the Army, $20,000,000 additional amount appropriated for fortifications $41,000,000 for deficiency appropriations—about $35,000,000 of which is due to the Mexican situation and increased requirements of the Army and Navy—and $20,000,000 for a nitrate plant, which is a preparedness appropriation. The increase in the appropriation for the present fiscal year other than for these extraordinary purposes is not beyond the normal increase."

In its analysis of the revenue bill as revised by the Senate committee, the Treasury Department estimates that the annual revenue to be derived will be: From income tax, $109,500,000; inheritance tax, $20,000,000 for 1917 (after law is in full force approximately $65,000,000), munitions manufactures' tax, $40,000,000; miscellaneous, including beer, liquors, stamp taxes, etc., $35,500,000—a total of $205,000,000.

TRAIN TIE-UP IN MINUTE.

A. B. Garretson Says Strike Would Begin In Twinkle.

Washington.—"How long would it take to tie up the railroads of the United States?" A. B. Garretson, head of the committee of railroad workers here, was asked. "I would say that in one minute after the strike is called the transportation of the United States would be paralyzed," he answered. Garretson said that the railroads, not the men, are responsible for the movement of mails.

DEATH CERTAIN ON FIRST LINE

Soldiers Go to Trenches With No Hope of Escape.

PRISONERS ARE DAZED

Teuton Guns Hurl 1,600 Shells In One Minute and Forty-five Seconds, Tearing Great Gaps Into the Advancing British.

German trenches opposite the British position at Gommecourt, on the Somme front.—Half a million British have been engaged in the effort to break the German lines on the Somme front. Often, as in the fighting between Gommecourt and Hebutorne, the British outnumbered the Germans six to one. They have gained ground to a depth of from three to five miles over a front of about 18 miles, but nowhere have been able to break through.

More than ever, death has become a commonplace in this most murderous battle of all times. The Germans in the first line knew that they probably will be killed if their positions are attacked. Trenches are virtually useless, for the heavy British shells widen them into broad channels, affording no cover of any sort. The first line usually perishes.

The advancing British foot troops are no better off, because the Germans reverse the process when part of their positions have been captured.

After the British artillery have levelled the German trenches the infantry rushes in, often to be thrown out again as soon as the British artillery ceases fire, which it has to do owing to the proximity of the opposing lines. Thus the battle has been going on for weeks, the opposing forces now gaining at terrific cost and then losing at even greater cost a few yards of trenches.

1,000,000 Shells a Day.

At present all the fighting by the British is carried from their Pozieres salient where their drum fire is unceasing day or night. German officers who were in the Champagne offensive said no such artillery fire ever had been developed previously.

An idea of the intensity of the German fire may be gained from the fact that on certain British troops German guns threw 1,000 shells in one minute and forty-five seconds, resulting in great slaughter.

Often the British assault dies away before the German second line, from which machine guns pour out streams of bullets which literally cut them into fragments.

At one point the correspondent stood within 800 yards of the British trenches near Delville Wood. Nearby the Germans had just buried 1,296 British, as lulls in the firing permitted. Some 500 British prisoners whom the correspondent saw behind the firing line plainly were still dazed from the shock. They were a sorry spectacle, glad they had escaped from "hell," as they termed it.

Unceasing Drum Fire.

The expenditure of artillery ammunition by the Entente Allies on this front is enormous, often striking the rate of 32 shells a second during drum fire. Not infrequently along the entire Somme front nearly 90,000 shells have been dropped in an hour, while a conservative estimate puts the average for the 24-hour period at more than 1,000,000 shells.

REBELS HOLD UP TRAIN.

Mexican "Legalistas" Capture 25 Carranza Soldiers.

El Paso, Texas.—Sixty revolutionists held up a passenger train on the Mexican National Railway last Tuesday near Aguascalientes, Durango, taking prisoner the 25 Carranza soldiers who comprised the escort, according to passengers aboard the train, which arrived here. Two baggagemen also were taken captive, but the remainder of the crew and the passengers were unmolested, they said.

ITALIANS SCORE NEW SUCCESSES

Enter Tolmino As Enemy Evacuates Burning City.

AUSTRIAN FLEET LEAVES

Austrian Fleet Seeks New Base—Sails From Trieste For Unknown Destination, Geneva Reports.

Paris.—Italian troops have entered the suburbs of Tolmino, which is under continuous shell fire, according to a dispatch to La Liberte from Turin. The Austrians, says the dispatch, are evacuating the city.

Austrian Fleet Leaves.

Geneva. — The Italian advance guard, moving southeast from Gorizia, is within 13 miles of Trieste, whence the greater part of the Austrian fleet has sailed for an unknown destination.

Italians Score New Successes.

Rome.—On the Carso plateau and to the east of Gorizia, along the Isonzo front, the Austrians have suffered further reverses at the hands of the Italians, the official statement says. Austrian entrenchments in both these regions were captured. The statement follows:

"On the Carso the gallant troops of the Eleventh army corps repulsed several counter attacks, and attacked the enemy's lines to the west of Sainte Grado and Monte Pecinka. Several sections of the enemy's trenches were captured and 1,419 prisoners, including 31 officers, were taken.

"In the hilly tract east of Gorizia, after heavy fighting, we carried other hostile entrenchments, taking 220 prisoners, of whom five were officers.

"On the remainder of the front the enemy made the usual demonstrations against our positions; at Monte Piana, in the Trienz Valley, on the Forame river, at Felizzon, Boite, Monte Colombara, on the Astico plateau at Monte Cimone and Monte Seluggio, near Astico, in the Posina basin and on the Pasubio. He was unsuccessful everywhere.

"Enemy aircraft dropped bombs on Monfalcone, Ronci, Saint Cansiano and Pieris. No casualties or damage resulted."

BRITISH REGAIN LOSS.

Take All Trenches North Of Pozieres Captured By Germans Sunday.

London.—Gains for both the British and French are claimed in official statements issued by the War Offices in London and Paris. The Berlin statement admits that the British obtained a footing in first line German trenches on the Thiepval-Pozieres front.

Following advances the western front is comparatively quiet, both London and Paris announcing that the situation is unchanged. The usual artillery bombardments continued at various places north and south of the Somme and on the right bank of the Meuse.

In the official British statement it was claimed that nearly all of the remaining trenches northwest of Pozieres, on the Somme front, in which the Germans gained a footing Sunday, have been retaken.

French Advance At Verdun.

Paris announced that French troops captured German trenches on a front about 300 yards long and 100 yards deep north of the Chapel of St. Fine, at the intersection of the Fleury and Vaux roads on the right bank of the Meuse in the Verdun sector.

On the Somme front the French artillery was very active at Belloy, Estrees and Lihons. Elsewhere the night was calm.

DREADNAUGHT BLOWS UP.

Italian Battleship Turns On Side and 300 Are Drowned.

Paris. — The Italian dreadnaught Leonardo da Vinci caught fire and blew up in the harbor of Taranto, Italy, and 800 of her crew were drowned, says a Turin dispatch to the Petit Journal. The date of the disaster is given only as a day in August.

The fire, says the dispatch, was discovered in the dreadnaught's kitchen, and spread rapidly. The captain immediately ordered the magazines flooded, and tried to beach the battleship, but one magazine exploded before this could be done. The vessel was turned over on her side, and a large number of the crew were thrown into the sea.

It is believed that the battleship can be righted and refloated.

IN CANNING TIME

SOME INSTRUCTIONS THAT MAY BE OF SERVICE.

Two Cardinal Points Are Cleanliness and Complete Sterilization—Just How These May Be Most Easily Attained.

There seems to be a belief by the general public that there is something mysterious in the commercial canning process. The great secret of this process is a careful observance of two things—cleanliness and complete sterilization.

Fruits and vegetables can be "put up" in glass jars or tin cans at home much cheaper than they can be purchased in the form of commercially canned goods, and the flavor, texture and general quality of the homemade product can be made superior to the product of the average factory, writes S. B. Shaw, recognized expert of South Carolina.

Minute forms of life which we call bacteria are present everywhere in untold numbers. The air we breathe, the water we drink, and the food we eat are teeming with them. These bacteria are practically the cause of the "spoiling" or fermenting of the various fruits and vegetables.

The reproduction of bacteria, which is very rapid, is brought about by one of two processes. The bacterium either divides itself into two parts, making two bacteria where one existed before, or else reproduces itself by means of spores.

Spores may be compared with the seed of an ordinary plant. These spores present the chief difficulty in canning the products of the orchard and garden.

All forms of bacteria are killed by complete sterilization. This is nothing more than enclosing the products to be sterilized in jars or cans that can be sealed air-tight, and submitting them to heat of sufficient degree, for a time long enough, to destroy the bacteria that cause the raw material to spoil.

Sterilization is readily accomplished by the use of boiling water, and there are three different ways in which this can be done. While the parent bacteria can be killed at the temperature of boiling water, their spores retain their vitality for a long time even at that temperature.

Smaller factories, and the different home canning outfits usually make use of the "open-kettle" process. Here the cans are submerged in boiling water and kept at that temperature for a time sufficient to destroy bacteria and spores.

The third process, known as fractional sterilization, is that of keeping cans or jars in boiling water for a specified time upon each of two or three consecutive days.

The process of boiling upon consecutive days is the safest method, and is much to be preferred in home canning. The first day's boiling kills practically all the bacteria, but does not kill all all of the spores.

As soon as the jars or cans cool, these spores develop, and a new lot of bacteria begin their destructive work on the contents.

The second day's boiling kills this new lot of bacteria before they have had time to produce spores.

Boiling the third day is not always necessary, but it is advisable in order to be sure that sterilization is complete.

Baked Fish Pudding.

The remains of boiled fish can be utilized in this way: Carefully remove the flesh from the bones; cut it up into small dice, and have an equal bulk of mashed potatoes. Put both into a basin and mix together; then melt some butter and pour it in, mixing well; add salt and pepper and a few grains of cayenne pepper; beat up an egg and add it last; mix all well together; put it in a pudding dish, smooth and score neatly on the top. Bake for half an hour.

Fish Flakes With Bacon.

Boil potatoes in salted water until tender; add two cupfuls of flaked fish, a fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper and a beaten egg. Take up by the rounding tablespoonful, shape lightly and fry in deep fat to a delicate amber color. Roll slices of bacon into cylinders, run a toothpick through each to hold it in place and fry until well cooked. Serve a bacon roll with each fish ball.

Walnut Croquettes.

This rule calls for one cupful of bread crumbs and a like amount of mashed potatoes and of chopped English walnuts. Add the yolks of two or three eggs, salt and pepper to taste and a little onion if desired. After shaping the mixture into croquette forms they should be baked in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

NOTHING IS WASTED THERE

People of Haiti Treasure Packing Boxes and Above All, Tin Cans.

Haiti is one country where almost everything is utilized, particularly if the substance be wood or tin. Lumber is $60 per thousand, and any substitute for it is eagerly welcomed.

For instance, a partition fence belonging to some well-to-do people on a prominent street is made of the tops bottoms and sides of packing boxes that contained cans of condensed milk; two doors farther on is a fence made of old barrel staves; and a combination of barrel staves and packing-box strips for fencing is by no means uncommon.

Tin cans, with the solder melted off and the tops and bottoms removed, are flattened out and used as shingles, in mending fences, patching holes, and for numerous other purposes.

The five-gallon oil cans, however, are prized and cherished family possessions. These cans have a regular market value of 15 to 20 cents gold. It is no unusual occurrence for a woman to buy a five gallon can of kerosene, hoist it to her head, and tramp all day pedding the oil in small quantities—at cost, if she can do no better—just for the sake of obtaining the tin.

These receptacles are used for carrying water, boiling clothes and storing and cooking food.

The tins in which five pounds of lard come have a value of 10 cents gold, and are a standard measure, known locally as a "mamite." They are used as a dry measure generally for corn, beans, salt and the like.

Even the square tins in which matches are shipped are sold at 5 to 10 cents each.

Exceptions.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

Bad Disposition.

"Bliggins gets up every morning at sunrise."

"No. So as to have the fun of spoiling other people's sleep."

THEIR RECORDS AS LEADERS OF PARTY

President Wilson Has Done What Hughes Failed to Do.

THEIR CAREERS CONTRASTED

Does Country Want Four Years More of Constructive Government, or Four Years of Republican Factional Fighting.

Mr. Hughes was governor of New York from January 1, 1907, until October 6, 1910, a period of three years nine months and six days.

Mr. Wilson has been president of the United States since March 4, 1913.

There are few more striking contrasts in politics than the record of accomplisament made by Mr. Wilson as president and by Mr. Hughes as governor.

When Mr. Hughes abandoned the fight for popular government in this state, resigned his office and accepted an appointment to the bench of the United States Supreme court, he had brought about the enactment of only one important measure—the public-service-commission act. Aside from the racetrack law, that was his one achievement, and this was largely offset by a complete demoralization of state finances which still continues.

Most of Mr. Hughes' energies as governor were expended in factional warfare with the Republican leaders who had nominated him for their own purposes, but who had no intention of allowing him to dictate the policies of the party. In spite of his excellent motives and splendid efforts, Mr. Hughes could not control the Republican organization; he could not influence the legislature, and he was compelled in the end to let other men win the battle that he had so resolutely begun.

The Republican party in the nation is controlled today by the identical interests that controlled it when Mr. Hughes was governor. Many of the bosses are the same bosses. The Wall street partnership, the trust partnership, the special-privilege partnership, are all in full force now as they were then. The national Republican organization is just as progressive as William Barnes and his New York cohorts were during the Hughes administration and just as eager for reform. Mr. Hughes as president would have to deal with the same kind of political and corporation influences that he had to deal with as governor. He failed to subdue them when he was governor. What reason is there for believing that he could subdue them as president?

Mr. Wilson has proved that he can lead his party, and he has obtained from it the most extraordinary measure of progressive legislation that any administration has ever won. Day by day he is making the record more remarkable and more brilliant. Does anybody believe that Mr. Hughes could wring from a Republican congress what Mr. Wilson has wrung from a Democratic congress?

Whatever program of advanced legislation Mr. Hughes may put forth, the vital fact remains that Mr. Wilson has demonstrated that he can lead his party and Mr. Hughes has demonstrated that he cannot lead his party. Does the country want four years more of constructive government, or four years of actual fighting between Republican president and the Republican bosses?—New York World.

This One Thing Enough.

For many years congress had been urged to pass a bill which would enable the farmers to borrow money on land mortgaged at low interest rates. Republicans and Democrats were alike committed to a rural credits measure, but it remained for the Democrats to shape a workable bill and pass it. If nothing more in the way of constructive legislation had been accomplished during Wilson's administration than the passage of the banking and currency bill and the rural credits bill the Democrats would be entitled to retention in power. But much more is to the credit of the Democrats.

All Interests Have Benefited.

The Republican party used to pride itself on being the business men's party; on being the party whose legislation promoted prosperity and kept the wage worker's dinner pail full. But no Republican administration ever made a record of far-reaching benefit to the many—business interests, industrial interests and agricultural interests—such as the Democrats have done. Certain it is that if Mr. Hughes were in President Wilson's place he could propose nothing by way of repeal or amendment that would improve on the Wilson legislative policies.

His Two Exclusive Ideals.

There is left nothing much in the way of ideals as the exclusive property of Mr. Hughes except the two little ones which he has announced since his nomination. One of these is the proposition that the indecent prosperity inflicted upon the country by a Democratic administration is to be ignored because it is only temporary. The other is that the efficient and hard-working American ambassadors and ministers in Europe, being nothing but honest Democrats, ought to be displaced by superior Republicans.

ONE BIG G. O. P. HANDICAP

Republicans Must Accept and Approve or Keep Silent About Federal Reserve Act.

The Republican party enters the campaign this year under one great handicap which has nothing to do with the lack of harmony in its ranks. It must accept and approve or else maintain a telltale silence about one of the chief works of the Democratic administration—the federal reserve act.

That act has had a chance to show its worth, and that worth proved to be all but priceless. Under the old Republican currency system the Roosevelt panic broke upon the country in a time of profound peace in 1907 and forced every bank in the United States to suspend specie payment. Under the new Democratic currency system the world war, beginning in 1914, did not even stagger our finances, did not break a single bank, did not stop gold payments for an hour; and today, after two years of that war, this nation's financial standing is higher than ever before.

You cannot argue with the people on this point. They know. They understand perfectly that this law passed by a Democratic congress under the urging of President Wilson is all that saved the country from the most terrific financial crash in its history. The party which proposed to abolish this Democratic legislation and return to the Republican banking regime would be snowed under in every county in the United States. Wherefore, the Republican leaders take refuge in silence—which doesn't deceive anybody.

It is pretty tough business looking for a job when you have to admit that the present holder thereof has done better work than you ever did. Yet that is exactly the position in which the Republican party finds itself. No wonder it gets a bit flustered.—Chicago Journal.

Wall Street Critics Exposed.

We are now in position to see these Wall street critics of the administration's policy in their true light. We do not envy their position. They are agitating for a larger navy and against ship purchase. The first would be useless without a greatly increased mercantile marine—yet they are opposing the administration plan, which would give us more ships, and favoring the policy that diminished France's merchant fleet in the very years when England's and Germany's so rapidly increased.

What shall we say of the patriotism of the man who wants millions thrown away on warships that we cannot use effectively for lack of a merchant fleet?

What shall we say of the common sense of a man who stands against a plan which would give us ships and for one that has worked exactly to the contrary?

And what shall we say of the intellectual honesty of a man who believes it "subversive of all sound principles" for the government—that is, the American people—to own merchant vessels for the common good, but highly to be desired that the government should pay money into the pockets of a few specially favored ship owners?

Ohio Democrats United.

Ohio Democrats are gaining confidence that they will carry the state in the coming election, according to Adam Shaffer, a prominent Democrat of Wapakoneta.

"There is no division among the Democrats of Ohio," said Mr. Shaffer, "and that cannot be said of the Republicans. There are many Republicans who are opposed to Governor Willis for several reasons and they will not support him. The fight between former Ambassador Herrick and former State Chairman Harry Daugherty for the senatorial nomination caused a great deal of bitterness. The president has a mighty good chance of getting the electoral vote of Ohio, too. His appointment of Judge Clarke to the United States Supreme court bench will do a lot of good. Altogether the situation is looking very good."

Oklahoma Safe for Wilson.

"Some Republicans have claimed they will win in Oklahoma this year," remarked Col. J. W. Zeveley, a prominent lawyer of Muskogee, Okla., at the Willard. "They have no more chance of carrying Oklahoma, in my opinion, than they have of carrying Mississippi. In the first place, the Republicans are in the minority in the state; they cannot get the colored vote, and the sentiment is strong in every section for the president. When the United States Supreme court repealed the 'grandfather clause' the Republicans were elated and predicted that they would finally poll a large colored vote, but a special session of the legislature in February passed a law regulating the registering of votes which offsets the provision of the Constitution. Therefore the Republicans will not get the colored vote this year."—Washington Post.

"Very Big Men."

"Mr. Willcox is a personal friend of Mr. Hughes and a very able man," says ex-President Taft, quoted in the Brooklyn Eagle. "He knows very big men and has the relationship with Mr. Hughes that will inspire confidence."

It is true, of course; Mr. Willcox "knows very big men." Mark Hanna "knew very big men;" the knowledge served him well. But what have such considerations to do with heightening hope in the success of an advocacy which we are assured is to be conducted upon the highest plane?

"They who would rely on a voluntary militia, instead of on a conscript army, know as little about real preparedness as a woman about tobacco.

What Impressed Her.

Shortly after Will Crooks, the labor leader, was elected to parliament, says an English weekly, he took his little daughter to Westminster. She was evidently awed at the splendors around her, and maintained a profound and wondering silence all the time. Mr. Crooks was much impressed.

"Well," said he to her at last, "what are you thing so deeply about, dear?"

"I was thinking daddy," answered the little girl, "that you're a big man in our kitchen, but you aren't very much here."

That Hungry Feeling.

"I put my feelings into this painting," said the poor but proud artist.

"That probably accounts for it," rejoined the critic.

"Accounts for what?" queried the slinger of paints.

"For the fact that the sky of the background looks like a scrambled egg," explained the critic.
